Modernistic Club News

The annual Homecoming was held at Galilee Baptist Sunday, Aug. 6, 1974, with Pastor Lawing at his post for the 11 a.m. morning worship, with a very appropriate message. Theme for discussion: "Coming Home". The morning worship hour was enjoyed by all present. The message was well explained. There was a large number of "Homecomers" in the audience, coming from many distant cities, and towns, who enjoyed being back home once again. Galilee Baptist was happy to have had the visitors, along with sister churches, in the morning worship hour Sunday. The church considered Sunday one of its most successful "Home Coming Days". The guest choir from Promise Land Baptist Church seemed to have been at its best and added a great deal of spirit, to the morning service. The choir was under the direction of Brother Tim Lawing. All present enjoyed the services very much. The offering for the morning was quite lovely.

Immediately following the morning services the guest and church members, were invited to the Fellowship Hall, where a very delicious dinner was served to all present. All enjoyed themselves very much at the Feast Table.

The church thanks the "Hospitality Committee," for getting together, such a tasty dinner.

At the 3 p.m. service hour, the Rev. Winston R. Jones, who pastors the First Baptist Church, Lynchburg, and is revivalist for the week, and his church choir, were in charge of the evening hour.

The Rev. Jones message was taken from Gen. 35:1-5 verses. Theme "It is Time To Go Back Home." The message was well taken by all present. The Rev. Jones admonished all, to have love, joy, understanding, friendship and know how to share in a home. The Rev. also stated that a beautiful building doesn't make a home, unless Christ is found in the building. All who listened to the message gained helpful information.

Prior to the evening message, ten captains from the church were selected by the pastor, to bring in funds on a "Free Will Offering". The captains made a very fine report for the evening. The offering proved very successful for the day.

The Rev. Jones' choir was very good and enjoyable.

The church is looking forward toward a successful revival through out this week. We invite our visitors and members to come out and support the cause this week.

The captains wish to thank the members, friends and relatives who supported them in the "Free Will Rally". We would have been lost as leaders, in the drive, without you, and you. Many many thanks. The picnic rendered by First Baptist Church here, to "The Holy Land" in Bedford Saturday, Aug. 2, 1974, was a great success.

The sister churches who were invited on the trip enjoyed

The trip very, very much. Helpful information was gained from a trip of that kind. Many thanks to the committee who gave the sister churches a bid to join you on the trip to the "Holy Land".

The community was saddened this week to learn of the passing of both of our very good friends in the person of the late Mrs. Beatrice Pierce who has been sick for quite some time and the late Deacon Sam Womack of Pamplin. The late Mrs. Pierced passed early Saturday morning and the late Deacon Womack pasted Friday in the Virginia Baptist Hospital, Lynchburg. We extend our deep sympathy to these two beloved families. The community commend you to a God who doeth all things right and just.

We pray for the sick and the downcast here and elsewhere ast this point.

PORK PICKIN'S Appomattox Pork Producers

Modern homemaker has learned the joys of using pork every day meal for her life.

It's a meat most people like to think of as Southern cooks turn to pork on those occasions when family and friends get together. For instance, during the summer pork is a favorite meat for barbecuing, especially on those days as the mercury soars into the 90's and above. And when the cool days of summer days is ushered in by the cool winds of fall, Southern homemakers turn to pork to use by in stews and pork roasts. And in spring time, pork shows its versatility as a basic meat in Southern homemakers' meal for instance, is not complete without pork or other pork entrees.

Pork might be called the year all seasons. Members of families never tire of pork containing this delicious food. And like beef, pork is available at your market all year long.

The homemaker, you are familiar with many different pork. You will discovering what excitement entrees can be had from every cut of pork.

Fresh or cured, is a delicacy with American people. It is in best supply - - - October is a better buy - - - late fall and winter. Delightful taste, ranging from the smoky goodness of cured ham to the delicate flavor of roast pork, is there for its long - - time use. The quality of fresh pork can be measured by the pink color of the meat. Cured fresh pork has an even softened with a thin fat-inch layer of fat. But from young pigs-ish pink; in older it turns to pale rose. The meat is always marbled with fat and is fine grained.

The way to tell the age of cured pork is to ask by brand name. Each packer has his own way of curing and smoking pork. To find the most appealing flavor and the most consistent quality, the products of several different meat packers should be sampled.

All cuts of pork will be tender. So, the dry heat methods of cooking are most often used. Large, chunky cuts of fresh and cured pork may be roasted 350 degrees F for fresh pork, 325 degrees F for cured pork. Pork roast needs no special seasoning. But its delicious flavor may be enchanced by careful use of herbs and spices. Try making five or six stabs in the roast with the tip of a paring knife, then insert a bit with slivers of garlic. Or, rub an uncooked roast with a mixture of 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, and ¼ teaspoon ground ginger.

Sliced cured ham, bacon, and sausage may be pan-fitted or broiled. Pork chops, cutlets, sliced fresh ham or pork shoulder, and sliced pork liver may be pan-fried. However, these cuts of pork are usually thin and pan-frying may dry them out. To avoid this, they should be braised - browned on both sides and then cooked thoroughly in a small amount of liquid. Pork absorbs the flavor of the liquid in which it is cooked and braising in different liquids will produce many unusual flavor combinations. Orange juice, tomato juice, stewed tomatoes, bouillon, or cranberry juice are most frequently used.

It is important to cook every pork cut thoroughly. Some pork just-cooked pork should always be served piping hot and juicy.
